Pontiac's Outrageous Rageous Full of Surprises

DETROIT – No one ever accused Pontiac concept vehicles of being wimpy and bland, but the latest creation from the Excitement folks is nothing short of Rageous!

Unveiled here at the North American International Auto Show, the rear-wheel-drive Pontiac Rageous has all the bold, exciting design cues Pontiac is known for and a hot Ram Air V8 engine. But it also reveals a cunning functionality that belies the extremes in the sweeping lines and 22-inch wheels.

"The Rageous is outrageous and full of surprises," said Pontiac-GMC General Manager Roy Roberts. "Pontiac character jumps out at you from every part of this vehicle. It's bold, it's aggressive, it's fun to drive and you can do things with it you can't do with a conventional sports coupe."

The sporty, knock-down, drag-out super-aggressive look of the Rageous is distinctively Pontiac. The Red Rush exterior color screams Excitement, accenting the promise of power and performance in the low cowl design, the Ram Air hood, the high, racy spoiler and the Rageous-specific P315/30R22 Goodyear tires.

The front of the Rageous incorporates the classic Pontiac dihedral – or "V" shape – especially in the center where the Ram Air intakes flow downward into the aggressive lower fascia. Even the signature Pontiac round fog lamps are nestled into dihedral recesses in the lower fascia.
